Control Center for Leisure & Entertainment
Solutions Guide

Leisure and entertainment is a prominent global industry, that is also one of the most vulnerable to safety and security threats.

Security executives have the challenge of protecting people, facilities and assets, while also maintaining friendly and welcoming services to visitors.

Ensuring the right people have the right information at the right time is imperative for recreational attraction organizations during critical events.

Leisure and entertainment attractions contribute to the wellbeing, education and health of citizens and tourists. Examples are: tourist attractions, stadiums, arenas, museums, palaces, national parks and entertainment venues.

For attraction visitors, safety and security should be visible, yet non-intrusive.

Brand reputation is everything, so better preparation reassures your customers, staff and commercial stakeholders that you prioritize safety and security.

Robust business continuity plans and protective measures need to be in place to mitigate against ongoing safety and security threats.

Leisure and entertainment organizations also need operational resilience during critical events to mitigate business disruptions. They need to be able to respond, adapt, recover and learn from events as they happen.

To manage these challenges, many organizations have invested heavily in diverse security technologies: CCTV, access control, intruder alarms, fire detection, intercoms and more.
